ABOUT THE SEMINAR

Financial capability is the capacity of human beings based on knowledge, skills and access to manage financial resources effectively. Level of financial capability of individuals affects their financial security and in turn it will influence the financial wellbeing. Research into what constitute wellbeing or 'the good life' began with the origins of philosophy itself. Its foundations lie in Ancient Greece: ideas that began there have shaped the way in which scientists and policy makers still think about wellbeing. Today money plays a big role in the wellbeing of individuals. The capacity of a person to manage money effectively determines the financial destiny of his/her family. Hence the financial capability of the people of a country can influence their financial wellbeing. The policy makers across the globe are thinking about the inclusive development, which is the final test of ethical governance. Financial inclusion, an integral requirement for inclusive development, is possible only through improving financial capability.

Even though financial capability is an essential requirement for a happy life in the modern society, our curriculum, at any level, is not providing an opportunity to understand or experience the skills needed for managing finance. The seminar attempts to create a platform for deliberations about the financial education to achieve better financial capability and wellbeing.
